The "provisional" phase of the approval process allows us to assess how well you have applied the principles outlined in the training course, in practice on a real job. It is essential therefore that you make a basic photographic record of your first two jobs: before, during and after cleaning and re-coating. These photographs are to be submitted to Kingfisher in electronic form. In addition we reserve the right to attend site during or after installation and to contact your client directly for feedback regarding both the quality of your work and the overall level of customer care. Full "approved" status is achieved after completion of two verified satisfactory jobs.

Please note: As well as the classroom element there is a strong practical side to the course , including spray coating in our factory demo area, so we advise warm casual dress .
